CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSIONS

The finding were written based on the research questions raised. Then, the discussion was described as interpretation of the finding based on the related literature.

4.1 Finding

I split the presentation of the result of the study into two different sections according to the research questions. Those were (1) the interpersonal meanings realized in the script movie "Smurf: The Lost Village". (2) the dominant MOOD realized in the script movie "Smurf: The Lost Village".

1) The interpersonal meanings realized in the script movie "Smurf: The Lost Village"

The interpersonal meaning in the script movie "Smurf: The Lost Village" which were identified and analyzed. The analysis was concentrated on the analysis of Mood and Residue. The mood is central resource established and maintained such as giving and demanding goods and services or information. The mood element consist of Subject and Finite. While residue refers to part of the clause which is not belong to the mood. The residue consist of predicator, complement, and adjunct.

Based on the analysis of the interpersonal meaning realized in the script movie "Smurf: The Lost Village" have mood and residue. It is realized by the wording of the clause based on the elements of the interpersonal meaning.

After identifying the clause, the writer choose clause which already analyzed in the interpersonal meaning by using Mood Systems.

The speaker presenting information to the reader or watcher most normally make statements. While the less dominant are interrogative and imperative mood. It can be seen from the mood block consisting of subject and finite.

4.2 Discussion

The goal of the study was provide more insight into realization of interpersonal meaning and analysis of Mood Types which used in the script movie "Smurfs: The Lost Village".

From the analysis, the writer notes that the Mood Element is giving and demanding information. Mood Element consist of subject and finite. While residue consist of Predicator, Complement, and Adjunct. Based on the analysis, the dominant mood of the clauses in the script movie "Smurfs: The Lost Village" is Declarative Mood. From the clauses in the data, the writer found 367 declarative mood, 65 interrogative mood, and 44 imperative mood.

The analysis of the clauses based on the interpersonal meaning as follows:

1. Declarative mood

   In this exchange of information, declarative mood provides information. Speakers or writer are presenting information to the readers most normally make statements. The subject and finite are both present or can be easily recovered from the preceding text. In the script movie, the writer identified 367 clauses which indicated as declarative mood.

2. Interrogative mood

   In the interrogative mood, speakers demanding information normally ask questions. Sometimes they ask in polar interrogatives, which expect a yes/no response. Sometimes they want specific information and ask who, when, how, which, where, what, whose or why. In either case, they signal that they are asking for information by putting the finite before the subject. In the data, the writer identified 65 clauses which indicated as interrogative.

3. Imperative mood

   In the imperative mood, speakers demanding goods or services may give orders or commands. In the most common form of this type of exchange, there is no apparent subject of finite. But, if they wish, speakers can make their demands more emphatic by adding a subject or a finite. In the data, there are 44 clauses which indicates as imperative mood.
